

ABOUT THE STATE

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST FROM DIFFERENT SECTIONS

A hail storm Sunday in the vicinity of Brattleboro did much damage to growing crops, some of the stones being as large as moth balls. Three hours after the storm it was possible to scoop up handfuls of them.

Joseph Shelosky has not been seen or heard from since he left his home in Ira June 1. He left an invalid wife and seven children, the oldest 16 years old and the youngest two years. Mr. Shelosky is 43 years old.

Miss J. Frances Hamilton returned to her home in Richmond Sunday from her trip to the California exposition, the trip being given by the Boston Herald and Traveler to five pretty girls of New England, from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, and one at large.

Over 70 farmers in Pawlet have joined the county farm bureau. Last Saturday afternoon 30 farmers met at the town hall and organized a Farmers' club believing their town can get the greatest benefit from the county organization through such a local organization. R. W. Blakely was elected president, G. W. Buxton, secretary, and Clifford Palmer, treasurer of the association.

The Vermont State Pharmaceutical association's annual meeting opened Monday in the Lake Dunmore hotel at Lake Dunmore. The first two days were devoted to business and papers. A program of social functions was arranged for each evening and the third day was given up entirely to sports.

The members of the Springfield Congregational church are endeavoring to secure funds for purchasing the N. C. Dodge property, adjoining the church. Six thousand dollars is required and one-half of the amount has been offered by a member of the church. A canvass of members will be made to secure the additional $3000. The property has a frontage of about 40 feet. No announcement is made as to what use may be made of the land.

ONE PUBLIC BEQUEST.

Ex-Gov. McCullough Left $25,000 to Bennington Library.

Bennington, June 30.—The will of former Gov. John G. McCullough, who died in New York May 29, which was probated here yesterday, makes a bequest of $25,000 to the Bennington Free Library association to be expended according to the judgment of the trustees.

Specified bequests are made in favor of the four children, Hall Park McCullough of New York, Ella S. McCullough of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Elizabeth McCullough Turner of North Bennington, and Esther M. McCullough of North Bennington.

The residuary estate is left to the widow during her life and to be distributed at her death to the children and their heirs. Two nieces, Eleanor H. Williams and her three children, and Mary T. McGuire and her two children are the recipients of legacies as is the testator's private secretary, David Bosman of New York. Servants who have been with the family five years are given a life lease of their present home at North Bennington. The son and widow are named as executors without restrictions of any kind.

Many Recoveries

From Lung Trouble

Eckman's Alternative has restored to health many sufferers from lung trouble. Read what it did in this case:

Wilmington, Del. "Gentlemen—In January, 1908, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs. My physician, a leading practitioner, said that it was lung trouble. I tried everything that had done great good. I began taking it at once. I continued faithfully, using no other remedy, and finally noticed the clearing of the lungs. I now have no trouble with my lungs. I firmly believe Eckman's Alternative saved my life." (Abbreviated.)

JAS. SQUIRES.
Eckman's Alternative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and in building the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Send for regular $2. Sold by leading druggists. Write for booklet of recoveries.
Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia.

THE DETAILS OF GRAFTING AND BUDDING.

Grafting is a process whereby a portion of one plant is united to another, the two plants being closely related botanically. The purpose is to unite a superior plant, or variety, to an inferior one, the latter forming the root portion and the former bearing the flowers and fruit. The superior plant is known as the graft or scion, while the inferior one is called the stock. The stock must be thoroughly well rooted and healthy, and may be raised from seed, cuttings, or layers, or an established though unsatisfactory plant may be made to serve as the stock. Thus frequently choice varieties of apples are grown on a stock of the wild crab apple, or of the Paradise; the rose is grown on the wild rose, briar, or musk rose stock, etc. The scion which is joined to the stock is a twig or small branch of the selected variety, from four to 12 inches long, bearing several plump buds, and is usually of the previous year's growth.

The Scion in Position.

When the scion is placed in position on the stock, see that there is a free passage given to the sap to pass on from the stock to the scion to insure a thorough union of the parts. The portions which must be placed together are the growing parts, or cambium layers just underneath the bark, and should be brought into direct contact; they need not touch all the way round, but there must be a sufficient and true contact to allow intercommunication between scion and stock. Always see that the inner surface of the bark of one coincides with that of the other, and try to get them in touch at as many places as possible, then success is assured. The scion and stock firmly together, or they tend to separate as the callus forms over the fresh wound, and all air must be excluded from the exposed parts until they are healed; never meddle with the wounds until the scion is in active growth. Another point to remember when grafting is early spring with dormant shoots, such as the apple, pear, etc., is to remove the scion from the tree some time in advance and place in the soil in order to keep them dormant, the aim being, of course, to have the scions inactive and the stock active.

Budding is a method of grafting in which the scion is a bud or potential branch, and this method of propagation is carried on only during the growing season. Every mature bud in the axil of a leaf (in the little growth found where the leaf stems start from the branch) contains the rudiments of a plant, shoot, or tree, hence the process presents a speedy and reliable means of propagating varieties which do not flourish well on their own roots; in other words, the bud is simply transferred to a growing stock.

The remains of Fred Welton's mother were brought here from Fairlee for burial last Saturday in the South Meadow cemetery.

Friends of Mrs. Cordelia Sargent are glad to know that she is able to be out once more.

The Busy Bees are expecting to have a fine time at Cookville, July 3. All are invited to come and enjoy the day.

PRECEDED BY PARADE.

101 Ranch Wild West Show in Montpelier Tuesday, July 6.

Scenes from the life of the far west, both past and present, are, it is announced, accentuated in the performances of Miller Bros. & Arlington's 101 Ranch Wild West show, which Montpelier and vicinity will have an opportunity to see, in conjunction with Jess Willard, the cowboy world's champion, and his company of sparsers, Tuesday, July 6.

Among the other offerings made possible by a big congress of cowboys, cowgirls, Indians, Mexicans and other wild west people, is an attack on a pioneer's train of "prairie schooners" by Sioux Indians, led by Chief Iron Tail, whose war experiences date back to the Custer battle and whose profile adorns the new "Buffalo" nickel; the capture and punishment of a horsethief, according to the summary code of the early days on the frontier; a stage coach hold-up, in which a big bunch of Mexicans are utilized; the pony express, showing how the mail was carried by means of relays of fast horses; a buffalo hunt, illustrating the Indian method of stalking the wild bison; Indian sun, green corn, ghost and war-dances, led by the great Sioux medicine man, Lone Wolf; a round-up of long-horned cattle, in which the skill of the cowboys, and incidentally, Jess Willard, both as horseman and in handling the lariats is shown; roughriding by cowboys and no less daring cowgirls, and other exhilarating events.

There will be two performances, at 2:15 and 8:15, preceded by a characteristic wild west parade at 10:30 in the morning.—Adv.
